

ECP MILAN 2015

The 14th European Congress of Psychology organized by INPA, Italian Network of Psychologists' Associations, will take place in Milan from 7 to 10 July 2015 under the auspices of EFPA, European Federation of Psychologists' Associations.

Following an increase in the number of requests, the ECP 2015 Organizing Committee established an extension of the abstract submission deadline, from 15 October 2014 to 15 December 2014. Notification of acceptance from the Scientific Committee remains fixed on 30 November 2014 for abstracts submitted by 15 October, while new abstracts will receive communication on 15 January 2015.

Why join ECP 2015? There are at least 10 good reasons:

1. Theory meets practice

The aim of the European Congress of Psychology is to promote a better interaction between psychological theory and practice, from which the whole discipline can benefit, by creating a context where researchers and professionals can meet and exchange knowledge and experience.

2. Expand horizons

The Congress offers the opportunity to establish contacts with professionals and academics coming from all Europe as well as other parts of the world, fostering dialogue and exchange among new and heterogeneous perspectives and approaches to psychological research and practice.

3. Diversity of topics

The topics that will be dealt with during the Congress will be diverse and will cover all disciplinary areas, thanks to the contributions of world-famous scientists, coming from different parts of the world.

4. Relationship between psychology and technology

Linking Technology and Psychology: Feeding the Mind, Energy for Life. The extreme pervasiveness of new technologies in our daily life represents on one hand a challenge for individuals' and groups' psychological well-being, but on the other offers new instruments for academic research and professional practice.

5. Nutrition and sustainable development

For the first time since 1889, a congress of psychology will take place alongside a universal exposition: Expo Milan 2015 will be an extraordinary international event dedicated to the themes of nutrition, environmental safety and sustainable development.

6. Crisis management

Not only does the current global crisis set relevant economic and social issues, but it also presents considerable costs in terms of personal and collective well-being, trust, motivation and efficacy. For this reason, the national and international psychological community should be able to contribute to the European cultural, social and political debate.

7. Stay in Milan

Milan is a city of great history and appeal, which offers the opportunity to engage in different kinds of activities. A frenzied and tireless rhythm affects both work-life and free time, so that it is difficult to remain indifferent and not be captivated by the variety of cultural stimuli.

8. A work in progress

The European Congress of Psychology wants to represent the building site of a great psychology factory, able to contribute to the development of society by helping to comprehend, resolve and prevent human problems.

9. Student discount

Psychology students will be able to access a reduced registration fee.

10. Early registration

Participants who will enrol before 15 February 2015 will be able to access an early-bird fee.
